

Video Discussion Guide for Youth

Notes about sharing video with youth

A 7 minute version of Eating Mercifully is available online at humanesociety.org/religion. A full length version can be ordered at religion@humanesociety.org. We suggest the group leader watch the film prior to the screening. You may also want to let the youth know that there will be some difficult scenes to watch, but that it will not be too graphic.

After showing the video allow some time for silence. Youth will respond in a variety of ways. Some may cry, others may make inappropriate comments, still others may act detached. Note that the inappropriate comments may be a sign of a youth's inability or lack of experience with responding to this type of discussion. Be prepared to show grace to each response.

Prayer

Holy and mercifully Lord, we recognize You as the Creator of all living things. We ask for your assistance as we reflect on what we just watched. Help us to be open in our responses: open about our own feelings and thoughts, open to our peers' reaction, and open to the movement of Your Holy Spirit. Guide us in our conversation and our continued meditation on Your word for our lives.

Discussion Questions -

After watching this video, what is a word that describes how you are feeling? (If it is feasible, give each student an opportunity to share one word.)

What stood out to you or caught your attention in what we just heard and saw?

What did you like about this video? Why?

What didn't you like about this video? Why?

Prior to watching this video, had you ever thought about where your food comes from? If so, how?

How has watching this video changed how you think about food?

Scripture

In our study of Scripture we can learn about how God wants us to interact with animals. Let's take a look together.

Read Genesis 1:1, 20-31, 2:1-2.

- What does this passage say?
- What living things are named?
- How are the living things described?
- What do we learn about God from this passage?
- What did God do on the seventh day?
- What do we learn about humans from this passage? How about animals?
- What does this first chapter of Genesis say about food?

In Genesis 1 we are reminded that God created everything and that God saw and declared that everything created was good.

Read Genesis 2:15-22.

- What does God tell the first human in this passage?
- What work does God do in this passage? What does God make?
- What work does Adam do in this passage? What does Adam make?

In this passage, God recognizes that it isn't good for Adam to be left alone. How does God respond to Adam's need for companionship?

In Genesis 2 we are reminded that God cares for human creation by providing food and companionship. This companionship first comes in the form of animal life and then as partnership in the form of human life.

Read Exodus 23:12, Deuteronomy 5:14, Matthew 12:9-14 and Proverbs 12:10

- Who is to rest on the Sabbath?
- What is a purpose of the Sabbath rest?
- How does a righteous person act?

In these passages we are told that the Sabbath day is to be a day of rest for both humans and the animals under their care. We are also reminded of our responsibility to care for God's creation.

In Scripture we learn how God gave humans dominion over the animals. What do you think this dominion should look like? How do humans show dominion today? How could this change?

How has the combination of our study of Scripture and watching this video changed your perspective?

Decision

In honor of St. Francis Day, The Humane Society of the United States launched All Creatures Great and Small, a campaign to remind people of faith about our personal and collective responsibilities to all of God's creatures. Youth are invited to take a fun online pledge to either switch to cage-free eggs, eat fewer eggs, or none at all for one month.
